26.	Exp.	The poet's grandmother loved to climb trees while she was six. Her brother had taught her how to climb a tree. Even at her old age, she used to climb trees. One day she climbed a tree and could not come down. She was rescued with great difficulty. The doctors strictly advised her to stay in the bed for a week. The moment she felt strong she demanded a house on a tree top. She got it and lived in it, often enjoyed there drinking sherry with her grandson. OR The poet describes an old Jazz player and how he transforms when he plays the music he loves. The Jazz player has a rough unshaven face and sagging stomach. He wears a faded blue shirt, a loose necktie and an old jacket. His shoes run down. Across his chest is an old alto Saxophone supported from his neck by wire coat hanger. The Jazz player at first has a weary expression on his face. He keeps his head down and lifeless. When it is his turn to play, he lifts the saxophone to his lips. Suddenly he is filled with a new life. He is no longer a helpless old man. There is power in his music which draws people to listen. People say, that now he is no longer an ordinary man. He is like a bird flying higher and higher, totally lost in the music he produces. Supplementary Reading	2	2	4
