24. Maria Montessori was born in Chiaravalle, in Italy on 31st August 1870 in spite of discouragement from all quarters. Maria became the first women medical graduate from the University of Rome. In those days' women were not enrolled in medical colleges.
- After her medical education she was made in charge of an institute for mentally retarded children. In those days people believed that mentally retarded children could not learn anything. So no one taught them anything- even simple things like attending to their needs and changing their dresses. During her work in the institution, Maria observed these children very carefully and saw that these children seemed to find out for themselves about many things. They would reach out for anything they found, turn it around, see its shape etc. She concluded that given proper training and attention these children could be taught to take care of basic needs and also some of them could pass the reading and writing test as ordinary children.

Maria taught the children to distinguish between colours, sound smells and tastes. She made frames with button holes and buttons to teach children how to tie shoe laces. Her methods worked well and soon the children were able to do many things on their own. Maria thought that her method could be extended to be useful to ordinary children too. So Maria opened the first school in the slums of Rome for children between three and six years. She called her school 'Casa Di Bambini'(Italian for 'Children's house'). She applied her medical and psychological knowledge and experience for proper training for normal children. She noted that when a child is really interested in the exercise he had chosen, he would become completely absorbed and could not be distracted. The child thus, learnt from enjoying what he was doing. Dr. Maria found that children were ready for different tasks at different stages and they needed the right exercise at the right stage. A Montessori teacher's job was not to tell children what to do but to recognise in which stage the child was and to guide him. Also children should be free to move about. They should not be pinned to their seats. Children become self-reliant and independent with this method.

Children were not given any punishment in a Montessori school because even if a child behaved badly at first, when he became engrossed in the activity of his choice, he would be quiet and settle down. Maria Believed that all human beings passed through a certain set stages of psychological development. Differences were mainly because of the opportunities offered by the environment in which they were brought up as a child.
