The famous proverb 'Prevention is better than Cure' means that we should take necessary steps to keep ourselves healthy. Often, people ignore their health, fall sick and then go for treatment. In order to avoid illness, we should take proper care of our health. Sickness takes away our strength and thus, we are not capable to work for months, even after healing. Furthermore, we have to spend a lot of money on our treatment. Thus, it is always better to avoid illness and we can do this by taking proper care of our health. We should always exercise and eat good and nourishing diet. We should not avoid routine checkups. We should regularly go for exercise, eat fresh fruits, drink boiled water and keep our house clean and hygienic by cleaning it everyday with antigerms cleaning agents. We must avoid smoking or drinking. Thus, by maintaining all these we can surely fight against illness and remain healthy.

My dear uncle,

I am fine. How are you and aunty? Here I am studying well. In the last examination, I have scored 480 marks. I am very happy to receive your gift of a digital watch on my birthday. It is very beautiful and useful to me. I like it very much. The colour and style of the watch attract all my friends. It will be very helpful to me at the time of my exam. It shall remind me of your love. Thank you very much for your kind gift.

Convey my regards to aunty.

Yours lovingly,
 Maha.

46. Life without computer

10. Role of Computers in the modern age.

We use computer as an asset in all the fields. It has revolutionised telecommunication. Computers help us to solve complicated mathematical and scientific problems in no time. A computer is a fast electronic calculating machine which accepts digitised input information, processes this input according to our instructions, then internally stored in the machine and finally it produces the output information. The list of instructions so stored internally is called a computer programme. The internal storage is known as computer memory. There are many types of computers. They differ in size, cost, and power of computing. The most common is the personal computer. It is mostly used in homes, schools, and offices. It is also known as desktop computer. It has processing and storage units, monitor, audio output unit, mouse and a key board. Notebook computer or laptop is the second type. Workstation computers are the third type. They are very large and powerful and known as mainframes, being used in big factories, companies etc... The use of computers is very popular because of internet which is the short form of International Network of computers. It can be connected to internet service provider. Computers save the labour of our young minds.
