Ans) 'New generation cinema' is not a global terminology but it is heard only about Malayalam films: New generation films are low budget films hence the loss also will be minimum. These films mark the end of superstars reign and the appearance of new stars. The application of digital technology helps to mask the shortcomings in film making. Moreover these films are less time consuming too.

New generation films are often industry-aimed, not art-oriented. They lack a good storyline, and in some cases the directors are inspired by western themes. It is lamented that they lack morals or messages. Low quality meaningless songs are introduced. The use of vulgar words associated with sex make the films repulsive. Above all, often we meet an inappropriate climax.
