Dear Maggie,

I suppose, you’re eagerly waiting to hear from me. After two weeks of voyage, I reached India, my motherland. On the third day after my arrival in India, I joined my duty at the Collectorate of Dera-Ghazi-Khan. One Sunday, I decided to make a trip to Fort Monroe. On reaching the Fort, I made it a point to purchase a bouquet of flowers. The caretaker of the graveyard directed me to the grave of Frank Clifford. I placed the flowers over the grave. I had ensured that your name was attached to the bouquet. While praying at his grave, I was reminded of the wonderful time I had with you.

Please convey my regards to your beloved mother. Hope to hear from you soon.

Yours lovingly,
