

Question 1.

Why was the Titanic called 'a poem of iron and steel'?

Answer:

The Titanic called 'a poem of iron and steel' because it was grand and beautiful like a poem.

Question 2.

What was the feeling of the people on board when they started the journey?

Answer:

The people on board felt that they were very safe and they would not meet any danger.

Question 3.

What was the 'ominous form' that loomed out of the darkness?

Answer:

The 'ominous form' that loomed out of the darkness was the huge iceberg that would collide with the Titanic and break it up.

Question 4.

Why was Captain Smith, the commander of the ship called, 'brave'?

Answer:

Captain Smith, the commander of the ship was called, 'brave' because for not even for one moment he thought of saving his life when he knew the ship was sinking. He stood on the bridge and told his crew that they were British and they should remember their country and should do their duty. They should save the passengers first.

The Wreck Of The Titanic

Summary

Stanza 1:

From Southampton, the Titanic started her voyage. She was a poem of iron and steel. She was a sea dream. Thousands of people standing on the shore watched her steaming away. She was the largest and the grandest of all the ships made until then.

Stanza 2:

There were thousands on board. They felt very secure. Nobody thought of any danger, as the captain stood at the wheel. He was directing the course of the ship. This would be her (the ship's) first and the last trip as she will never reach a port again.

Stanza 3:

She was the best shipman had made. She was speeding on her first voyage when suddenly, out of the darkness, in the night, a ghostly white form appeared.