19. Read the passage given below and make a précis of it.

We sometimes think it would be very nice to have no work to do. If only we had not to go to school and do our lessons, we could have holidays from January to December ! If only we had not to work in the fields, or go to the office every morning, or serve in a shop all day, how jolly life would be ! And we envy rich people who have not to work for their living, but can do just what they please all the year round.

When we feel like this, we make a mistake. Perhaps rich people are not as happy as we think are. Very likely they are tired of having nothing to do. Of Course there are some people who have too much work, or who have to do very unpleasant work. But most of us are really happier if we have regular work to do for our living, especially if the work is, the work we like.

Questions 20 – 25, answer any 5. Each carries 6 scores.

Sunset in the Golden Gate

When day is done there falls a

Solemn hush :

The birds are silent in their humble nest.

Then comes the Master Artist with his brush,

And paints with brilliant touch the golden west.

The blended colors sweep

across the sky,

Score

And add a halo at the close of day, Their roseate hues far – reaching banners fly.
And gild the restless waters of the bay, Mount Tamalpais stands in purple 'tire
Against the background
Phoenix like ornate :
Apollo drives his chariot of fire
Between the portals of the Golden Gate.
No other hand than His who rules on high, Could wield the brush and spread such bright aray upon the outstretched canvas of the sky
Then draw the curtain of departing day.
